

JIN JIJI HIGH PROOF

GOA INDIA

Jin Jiji High Proof is inspired by the Royal British Navy who during Colonial times first set a high proof requirement for gin being transported to India. As space is scarce on ships, the Navy preferred alcohol at higher strength as they could get more in a smaller space. A strength of 57% ensures that gunpowder isn't contaminated in case of a spill.

A high proof gin will hold more of the aromatics from the botanicals and result in a more complex gin. Jin Jiji High Proof gin fits in with a contemporary attitude to use higher proof spirits in cocktails for fuller flavor by adding weight and intensity.

TASTING NOTES

Aromatic notes of juicy berries, sweet floral chamomile with herbal undertone on the nose. Palate starts with a kick of juicy berries followed with surprise of creaminess of freshly plucked Tulsi with hints of floral honey. Finish is warm and creamy lingering light sweet Herbal notes.

JIN JIJI

We set out on an expedition around India to source for a gin that truly depicts the rich and diverse botanicals found in this magical country. The heart and soul of our "India Dry Gin" is wild Juniper, foraged in the extremity of the Himalayas. We couldn't resist adding Tulsi, a fragrant leaf used in Indian Ayurveda and often regarded by Hindus as the earthly manifestation of goddess Tulsi. We distill our botanicals in a little distillery in Goa, throwing into the pot some of the highest grade, locally grown cashew nut – thriving here since being introduced by Portuguese rulers in the seventeenth century.
