

KAMET SINGLE MALT WHISKY

KURUKSHETRA, INDIA

Our story begins at the base of Mt. Kamet, the third highest peak in the Himalayas. From here the Kamet foothills unfold into verdant plains where the fertile soils become a patchwork cut by mountain fed streams. For thousands of years the lands beneath Kamet have been a breadbasket for the Indian people providing water and agricultural sustenance. The stories, legends and fortunes of this region have been passed along, and are carried forth today, by the sacred Parrot our brand icon. We are reminded and inspired by the winged messengers of the region to work hard, be loyal to our community and thankful for our bounty

KAMET

Picadilly distillery has Scottish style whisky pot stills which were installed in 2012. Two wash stills of 25,000 liters each and two spirit stills of 15,000 liters each are in daily operation. The wash still resembles a lamp glass design while the spirit still has a boil ball in the cone area to increase the reflux, resulting in a light, floral and fruity spirit.

There is a small cooperage onsite handled by 3 coopers from Bareilly, a place in India known for its coopers. The coopering operation is under expansion, with the charring, assembling and leak repair work being done at the distillery.

Kamet was created in partnership with Surrinder Kumar. Surrinder is India's most renown whisky personality, widely considered as being the father of the single malt in India. He previously served as Master Blender for Amrut distilleries, founding and spearheading their single malt program, and showing the world the potential for India to produce whisky of great complexity.
