

MEXICO TEQUILA CASK

KILLOWEN BONDED EXPERIMENTAL SERIES 10 YR OLD WHISKEY

MOURNE MOUNTAINS, IRELAND

From the outset, the challenge was to push the boundaries of cask finishing as far as possible and in this release the relationship of wood and spirit creates a more balanced flavor profile where ripe fruits meet nuts, herbs and earthiness with a tiny kiss of smoke.

The fact that it is not Killowen distilled spirit but rather, as the names suggest, a blended/bonded spirit – is clearly set out. By providing the consumer with all the information allowing a deeper understanding of the flavor breakdown. This whiskey is the third in a set of different whiskeys. The Mexican Tequila Cask was specifically chosen for its old wood and potency, creating a unique small-batch spirit with a full-bodied experience.

TASTING NOTES

NOSE: A balanced strong arrival on the nose, with slight notes of white fruits, like ripe pear and fig with a subtle herbal tone and earthiness.

PALATE: A mixture of almonds, apple wild herbs and tobacco on one hand with dark chocolate and walnut on the other, married together with consistent wood spice.

FINISH: A long wood-spice finish with subtle smokiness along with fig and ripe apple reoccurring afterwards.

KILLOWEN SMALL BATCH IRISH DISTILLERY

The most authentic of distilleries, Killowen Distillery is seated in the heart of the Mourne Mountains in County Down, where horizons are framed by sweeping hills that slope gently into the sea. It is a place where old traditions and the finest natural resources have been blended to produce world class craft spirits.

Killowen Distillery has a cult following that describe it as a 'true distillery.' Seated at the slopes of Knock Shee (the Fairy Mountain), the path to the distillery is the path smugglers took during the Napoleonic Wars to bring French brandy into the North of Ireland and until recently was a perfect hideout for local poitín makers (moonshiners).
